

The Harvest

The farmer went on digging in the field. He wanted to finish getting ready to plant his potatoes.	11 18
As he planted them, he felt happy. He was sure his trouble with this troll was over.	29 35
When it was time to dig up the potatoes, the troll climbed up through a hole in the hill. He carefully broke off the tops of almost one hundred potato plants and took them down into the hole with him. Later, he went back to finish the job.	47 61 72 83
“I like this plan,” the troll thought to himself. “Let the farmer have the roots of the potatoes. I will take the part above the ground.”	94 106 109
When the next year came, it was the troll’s turn to have all that grew below the ground.	121 127
