Bill and Jimmy May worked as a team learning how to use the Morse code.	11
One evening Mr. May brought home a strange looking surprise. It was a small block of wood that had a buzzer on it.	15
“Will this be useful while you’re learning the Morse code?” he asked.	24
“It sure will!” cried Bill, as he dropped his pen into his shirt pocket. “Using a buzzer to buzz out the words will work much better than tapping them out with a ball point pen.”	38
All through the long winter the boys used the buzzer to tell each other many things in Morse code. When spring came, Jimmy began feeling better and went back to school.	47
