

An Old House

Julie's uncle left the room. She began to think that life in the country might not be so lonely after all. She undressed quickly and hung up her clothes.	12 23 29
She had just switched off the light in her room and had climbed into bed when Aunt Jean came in to say good night.	41 53
"Summer nights can get pretty cool," said Aunt Jean as she put a blanket on the bed. "Sleep well, dear, and don't be alarmed if you hear strange noises in the night. An old house creaks now and then."	63 76 88 92
"Why?" asked Julie, holding tight to Aunt Jean's hand. Julie didn't want her to leave.	101 107
"The boards in an old house have a way of talking to each other, telling about the things they've seen," explained her aunt.	119 128 130
