Win as if you are used to it, and lose just as though you like it for a change. In this way you show that you are quite as big when you lose the prize as when you take it. The next time you make a goal, act just as if you are very used to it.