As you explore a new speed zone, try your best to control each move. A major goal is to make every move quickly and in the right way.

If you lower your speed, you can pay more attention to your work patterns. If you drop the rate about two words, you get new control and cut mistakes.