

Danger in the Fog

After Mr. May and Bill had gone a mile or two, the fog got heavy.	13
“Maybe we’d better go back,” said Mr. May. “The fog is so heavy I can hardly see the road.”	15
He turned around and headed toward home. They drove along without talking. Dad didn’t want to worry Bill, and Bill didn’t want Dad to think he was afraid.	26
Bill rolled down the window. It was hard to see the road signs or anything else through the heavy fog.	34
As they drove over a bridge, Bill saw a neighbor’s mailbox. Now he knew they were only a half-mile from home.	43
“Careful, Dad!” he called. You’re too far over on the side of the road!”	54
A wild fox ran out of the fog, right in front of the car. As Mr. May tried to miss the fox, he drove off the road, straight into a tree.	62
