Tiffany Stanley Named Chief of Staff at State Board of Education

SALT LAKE CITY—State Superintendent of Public Instruction Sydnee Dickson announced Tiffany Stanley has been named Chief of Staff at the Utah State Board of Education, effective immediately.

Stanley joined USBE in the summer of 2016 as a policy advisor after working for the Utah State Legislature as a policy analyst, staffing education committees and drafting education-related legislation.

In her new capacity, Stanley will serve as a key strategic advisor to the executive leadership team. She will be responsible for internal communications, including developing an inclusive internal communications plan and coordinating staff meetings. Stanley will also initiate and monitor agency-wide strategic initiatives and establish routines to drive efficiencies and monitor performance.

“Tiffany is a systems thinker, problem solver, project manager, and a visionary leader. I have come to appreciate and admire her many talents that will serve the agency well in being more effective and efficient,” Dickson said.

Stanley earned a bachelor’s degree in international relations from Brigham Young University and her Master of Public Administration degree from Syracuse University. Stanley can be contacted at tiffany.stanley@schools.utah or 801-735-9001.
